

The NAB has for many years controlled the commercial airways of this country. If this Group of broadcasters are afraid of the free enterprise system and can afford to lobby Congress and the FCC maybe they should send up thier own sattilites and start thier own system. I would much rather pay XM 10 dollars a month than listen to the drivel coming from local market stations. Even in Northern California I cant listen to a complete program befor it fades or is ruined by static. When I want a talk station to listen to I'm tied to what the area has for me on AM static and fade and sporadic reception. Yep those are free to me because they have paying advertisers. I would like to keep my option of paying for my content and if I get tired or bored or upset with its performance I can quit paying the money and turn the FM and AM back on.
